THE RETURN OF THE BANANA !!!

*****

Yes, we're back! A little older, more cynical perhaps slightly wiser, but back in print.

After nine months lying on a golden Carribean beach we received a desperate call from Mr "don't knock it lad, it's from Manchester, I'm a Northerner and proud of it" Warrington. The message, scratched on the back of a mouldy cheese sandwich with a blunt instrument told of a desperate situation. It went:-

"Please come back lads! Literature standards have fallen to the floor, art has been decimated, true artistes have disappeared... Man. Utd. have lost the Championship. The enslaved proletarian masses need a sign, something to respect, a thing to look up to. We need another..... DAY-GLO BANANA."

Stirred by this despairing message, the three original writers; Stuart "Stephen Bennet" Barnett, Neil "90mph and I'm only in 2nd" Hubbard and Anthony "left of centre" Price with Michael "It's a Beetle" Cooper and others too few to mention slaved over hot typewriter, computer and drinks for at least 4 minutes each to bring back the DYGB.

So here it is, hope you like it. Roll credits.

Well dear reader, you probably want to know more about your wonderful editorial team without whom your school days would be even more dull than they are already (well you probably don't but you haven't got much choice).

The three "lads" could be described as many things but for the purpose of this piece, let them be: The Good, The Bad, And The Hubbard.

MY MISSION OF VENGEANCE by Annette Price.

=====

The Good: Stuart "large red school bag" Barnett.

You've most probably seen this tall and dark figure around the school. He's got such a sense of humour - if you don't believe me then take a look at his trousers, they usually reveal three inches of ankle (calm down girls!!) If he's not sporting his half mast trousers then he could be found wearing black ones (full length) a red shirt, black waistcoat and black winklepicker boots. Ideal clothes for a person who would definitely be at home (definitely not in public anyway - Ed.) listening to Billy Bragg and The Beatles. However he also likes sixties groups such as The Byrds and The Beatles, in fact a lot of groups as long as it's not The Frank Chickens.

Everybody's favourite man, he shocked the world a year ago by having his hair cut short at the back, however it was soon back to a more recognisable length. He's guaranteed to make you laugh within three minutes of conversation, his hobbies probably include wrestling with crocodiles but the only ones which are public knowledge are playing in a band called The Limit Club (plug plug) and getting drunk as often as a struggling musician's wallet can't afford.

The Bad: Anthony "Silly Mirror Sunglasses" Price.

If you see a (very) small figure wandering around school with a copy of "Marx" under his arm then that'll be "our Ant". This is the chap that has walked through Kinver with a Red Wedge t-shirt on and lived to reflect on the experience.

When he was just a second year somebody noticed a resemblance to Rowan Atkinson and the name stuck. Who would believe that under that mop of black hair could be such an assortment of people. There's the Anthony to whom the teachers are accustomed "I don't mind sir I'll do it". There's the rebel at home "I don't care if you don't like my new shirt Mother I'm still going to wear it." There's the Ant who has the mentality of a six year old who can reduce me to hysterics and there is even a shy Anthony who hasn't the nerve to ask one certain female out (Aaah!!) I'm told that he's disgustingly fit and enjoys running around while most others are dying from heart failure.

In his spare time he enjoys modelling for the Action Man catalogue, he works at our local Carrefour and enjoys the odd bevvy with "ver lads". Ant has been known to judge a place by it's liquid refreshment - if the beer's good then he'll go there again. Anthony is even this year's head boy - what a lad!!!

The Hubbard: Neil "what's wrong with pink cardigans" Hubbard.

This figure will definitely be known to you all. He has an amazing sticky-up hairstyle which actually looks rather tremendous but who'll tell him? He quite likes the colour pink (nothing wrong with that is there?) and gets inspiration from Nick Rhodes (definitely something wrong with that). A popular game amongst myself and selective friends is to see who can embarrass him the most. Try it the next time you see him, wave at him, his colouring may match his cardigan but it's my guess that he loves every minute. Some people tell me that he looks like Nik Kershaw, but I'm not convinced by this. He has been reputed to listen to Elgar in the garden but we won't hold that against him.

He is a competent mathematician, he gained something like 95% in last year's exam. His self confidence could be interpreted in unenlightened circles as big headedness but Neil does have an annoying habit of getting things right and hence passed his driving test first time. Typical!

This report was presented to the board of shareholders last week. There were no survivors. Speaking on the 'phone from Rio de Janeiro, Mr Barnett was quoted as saying;

"Obviously, this loss is a little bit disappointing, as we may have been a wee bit over optimistic about our expected income. However, this Great British product will soon be making a profit as we intend to increase the cost of price of the next magazine to £3,000 per copy. You know, I love it when a plan comes together..."

"AFTER A LIFETIME OF SERVICE, I NEVER THOUGHT I WOULD END UP LIKE THIS."

Lizzie is eighty-five years old and a widow. Her family grew up and left home many years ago and now she lives alone in her London home.

Although the social services provide her with home help two days a week, her butlers, maids, footmen, chefs, gardeners and secretaries all have to be paid out of her meagre £320,000 a year pension. Lizzie is a proud and independent woman, but with the price of vintage champagne and suckling pig rising all the time, it can't be long before she is forced to sell one of her art treasures or even a castle to make ends meet.

...The Book goes ever on...and on and on and on and on and on and
(For those who are BORED OF THE RINGS; )

The story so far: Our two intrepid hobbits, Slobo Dogbreath and his trusty sidekick, Bonk have set out from their home, BOg-HOLE, known to us as Manchester, in their quest to find the High Lords, Marillion, enthroned at the NEC. Now, read on....

SLOBO: By Mordor, it is cold tonight. On such nights, the icy breath of Sauron whistles round the Bombadils...

BONK: You can say that again. Where are we?

SLOBO: The eyes of Lochlorien twinkle bright to the east, and the arc of Wetwang is to the west...

BONK: ...so...

SLOBO: ...er...

BONK: Damn, lost again. Why couldn't you buy an AA map like anyone else?

SLOBO: I follow only the runes of Elador!

BONK: Runes, prunes! You don't know what you're talking about!

SLOBO: Hark! I hear street music!

THUNDERBILD: Ho! Tiddle, bang bong

Widdle biddle boo

Haddle paddle, niddle noddle

Doldi - digerdoo

SLOBO: 'Tis Thunderbild Clapthighs, fair elf of the North! I know his silken tongue anywhere!

THUNDERBILD: Ah merry Slobo it gladdens my heart to see you again. And you my precious Bonk.

BONK: Keep away from me you great fairy. Did you get the food?

THUNDERBILD: I'm an elf actually. As for food, I spread your table with berries, nuts and good forest food for hobbits!

BONK: Pah! Hippy food! Right, that's it. I'm fed up and I'm off to McDonalds.

=====

After a great deal of heated debate, the new GCSE (Gone Crackers Sitting Exams) is finally with us. And there are signs that the nationally agreed criteria - complete disregard for logic and a creative approach to information and spelling - are already being enthusiastically met. From the following exam papers:-

GEOG: "The Eskimos travel in sledges pulled by dogs called husbands."
"Rivers are essential to keep sea level in its right place."
"After the salmon are caught, they are sent to the canary to be caned."
"The main products of the cacao tree are chocolates and cigarettes."

SCIENCE: "Dental decay has decreased over the past ten years because teeth have been nationalised."

"Hot water is spread around the room by convection."

Q. But beware power lines, because they carry a high voltage. Why? A. "To deter people from coming too close to the wires."

"A person eats Cobalt 60, then hours later you can pick up the traces."

"Infect the patient with a highly radioactive liquid into his blood, then let him decay..."

Q. Give one use a doctor might have for a computer in his surgery. A. "It could be used for playing Space Invaders."

HISTORY: (To examiner) "I realize that you think you understand what I said, but what you read was not really what I think I was trying to say."

"The Arabs wore nylon clothes in battle. The secret of making nylon was unknown to Richard the Lionheart."

RE.: Q. Why did Jesus go to John to be baptized? A. "So he could become a member of the Catholic church."

"Houses have to built and jobs provided to stop vandalism etc. This can be done by teaching people to become illiterate."

ENGLISH: "Ross says in a roundabout fashion of how Macbeth has had every member of his household murdered, even the pets he kept... Macduff cannot believe the news and asks 'What, all my pretty chickens?'"

"The first two predictions came true so Macbeth had to kill the king to make it a hat trick."

"Gabriel Oak is pretty boring but then Thomas Harding could make a week-long orgy sound boring."

Remember Jack in 'Lord of The Flies'?

"You would never have guessed that Jack was later to turn into a savage because he was brought up properly and went to a private school."

"Greenham Common is used for the Queen's Garden Parties."

LOOKING AHEAD: NEXT WEEK'S TV

MONDAY: "Blue Peter".

Jan tells us a jolly interesting story from history, with still pictures and brilliant sound effects. Then Peter cooks something and reads out the recipe wrong before introducing the majorettes / cubs / brownies. Next, Simon goes down on the farm to look at the lambs and to finish the show the presenters tell us what's happening on Thursday before all saying goodbye together.

TUESDAY: "Six O'Clock News".

People get kidnapped and murdered and somewhere has to close down due to cash shortages. But everything's OK at the zoo where a cuddly little animal has just been born.

WEDNESDAY: "Quincy".

The rest of the pathology department gives up on the murder case, but Quincy continues following his seemingly useless leads and ideas. He has a big argument with his boss, and says that everybody in the world is wrong and then proves it by solving his case about three minutes before the programme ends. Quincy and his buddies celebrate by having a slap-up meal on his boat / a drink at their favourite bar.

THURSDAY: "Top of the Pops".

After the super new TOTP titles, one of the aged Radio 1 DJ's appears, dressed in very LOUD clothes. He then tells a pathetic joke based on the name of the next group that he introduces. They then come on, they aren't very good, they mime their song in front of the jolly crowd (with party hats). This process is then repeated several times, interspersed with chart rundowns and videos (couldn't afford the group so we got the video instead).

FRIDAY: "Auf Wiedersehen, Pet".

While on a special building job, which isn't quite legal, the lads get very drunk and by mistake, get themselves in trouble with some very important people who nearly call the police. Luckily they manage to explain their way out, but it's a close shave!

SATURDAY: "Saturday Movie: James Bond".

007 is briefed on a special mission in which 005 and 006 were mysteriously murdered. He's given some clever little gadgets to take with him, and which he immediately knows how to use. When he arrives at his exotic destination he has a car chase, then a boat chase and smashes up the enemies' vehicles. Later on he is unfortunately captured but he escapes by using one of his gadgets. He then bumps off some baddies, bumps into some girlies and uncovers the empire of organised crime. The paratroopers and half of the US army arrive in the nick of time, the gun battle commences and Bond and Girl escape to be rescued later.

SUNDAY: "That's Life".

The gang uncover the scandal of the dishonest men who run dodgy businesses and rip off old people (serious bit). They then sing a song about it (happy bit) before laying down the laws of morality (serious) and reading out rude bits from newspapers (happy). A boy then plays the theme tune on his teeth.

LIGHT BULB JOKES

*****

How many ..... does it take to change a light bulb?

HIPPIES: 300; 1 to change the light bulb, 299 to share the experience.

SADD-MASOCHISTS: 2, 1 to stick his finger in the socket, 1 to flick the switch on and off.

SURREALISTS: Double glazing.

ALTERNATIVE COMEDIANS: 3, 1 to swear at it, 1 to tell it jokes about ladies' bottoms and 1 to hit it over the head.

SCHOOL TEACHERS (?): About 5 (and a home repair DIY manual.)

MEMBERS OF S.S. SPUTNIK: 3; 2 to put the bulb in and 1 to collect $4 million for thinking of such a great idea.

POOFES: 6; 1 to put the bulb in and 5 to stand around screaming "Soooper!"
FRIDGES: 3; 1 to hold the light bulb and 2 to turn the stool.

WHAT TO DO IN AN EMERGENCY

In the hustle and bustle of everyday life it has been calculated that the average person will encounter a problem rated small to trivial once every two days. However, with sufficient preparation most crises can be averted. The following is an extract from my forthcoming book; "Reducing Stress and Cutting out the Bad Vibes" (Pub. Penguin £5.99), which deals with these situations.

1. IF PURSUED BY A MAN-EATING SHARK:-

2. IF TRAPPED IN A LIFT WITH A PSEUDO-INTELLECTUAL:-

Climb out through trap door. Whilst holding electrical switchgear aside with insulating material eg. shoe, gently loosen braking mechanism using emergency kit item 5D. Lift should SLOWLY slide to ground floor. Care should be taken not to release locking bracket which secures lift to cable. If bracket is detached then scream very loudly, swear and, if you have time, pray.

3. IF FORCED TO WALK THE PLANK:-

The most important thing to remember is to take a good look at the evil, marauding captain for later description. Do NOT try to overpower the ship's crew. When actually in the sea, remove rope from wrists and sack of stones from feet before swimming to nearest desert island. Be rescued by passing ship.

4. IF IMPALED ON RAILINGS:-

Using neighbouring railings, lever yourself vertically upwards. Move slightly forwards and lower yourself to the ground, being careful not to re-impale. With right hand at front and left hand at rear, hail taxi and proceed to hospital. Ask driver to drive slowly to prevent spillage of blood, intestines, etc.

5. IF ABOUT TO BE IN COLLISION WITH AN ONCOMING XR2:-

On a straight road, the solution is simple; reverse out of the problem. On a bend or at a junction it is slightly more difficult. The best method is to vigorously accelerate (do NOT use the brake) and pass the XR2 on the right, mounting the pavement if possible. Be careful not to clip rear wing of XR2.

6. IF ISOLATED IN ASTEROID STORM IN ISOSCELES SPACE SHIP:-

Blast as many small asteroids as possible (RETURN key), moving onto the larger ones later. Jet away from large asteroids on collision course (SHIFT). If you are totally surrounded by asteroids all on collision course then hyperspace.

7. IF TRAPPED IN SCRIPT OF DISASTER MOVIE:-

Collect together survivors, preferably those with minor injuries. Proceed together to top of flaming building / mountain / capsized ship / island etc encountering dramas en route. Cut hole in something with a can opener, scream for help. When helicopter arrives get in plenty of muscle / sweat / profile camera shots and then be whisked away, crying gratefully.

THE LIMIT CLUB - Demo Tape

Anybody in the third year plus might remember reading a gig review of "December's Child" in this very magazine last year. Well, to complicate matters, "The Limit Club" used to be Decembers Child until about six months ago when they changed their name.

Anyway, The Limit Club (who are Stuart Barnett, lead guitar and vocals, Andrew Hyde, rhythm guitar, Dave Westwick, bass guitar and Chris Arthurs, drums) have released a demo tape. This contains 'real' music; there is no manufactured, synthesized rubbish on this tape! No, it contains real guitars and drums and what's more they can even play their own instruments which is becoming unusual these days.

The lyrical content is also unusually good. It does not take an hour to work out what the songs are about, but at the same time the lyrics are cleverly written.

One not so good aspect of the tape is that there are only two songs on it (one written by Stuart, the other co-written with Andrew Hyde). Both of them are really good but obviously this cannot give you a real interpretation of what they might be like if you went to one of their gigs.

The first song, entitled "Came to Pieces", has a natty introduction and the vocals start off in a quiet fashion and build up to a crescendo at the chorus. It also actually finishes and does not fade away to nothing like most songs today. The other song is called "Not Waving But Drowning" which starts off faster and it's altogether quicker and the more immediate of the two. A definite toe-tapper for everybody, this contains quite a gutsy (do you mean 'gusty'? - Ed.) guitar solo from Andrew Hyde, in the middle. This again actually finishes - what more could you ask for? To sum it up in a word - brilliant - and I'd recommend it to anyone.

Have you noticed them ?

Everywhere you go these days, railway stations, shopping centres, car parks, normally they're on their own, but sometimes in groups of two or three. Just sitting there, waiting.... and watching.... watching you.

I'm talking, of course, about shopping trolleys. It's my personal opinion that these trolleys are an alien lifeform that is monitoring us earthlings and waiting for the correct time to strike. (Some eminent trolleyists suggest that the shopping trolley as we know it may be the missing link between Ronald 'Rambo' Raygun and a brainless slug.)

The time of invasion is fast approaching, I believe, hence the increasing number of trolleys. The trolleys hate human beings; this is evident from they way they do not move in straight lines when pushed by humans and gouge huge chunks out of human's new cars.

The trolleys have selected many landing points (quaintly known as supermarket car parks) for their invasion. They can be seen practising manoeuvres there, when 20 or 30 of them link in a long chain and run amok round the car park, pursued by helpless supermarket staff.

The invasion will begin, I believe, at some time between 5.12 and 5.17 p.m. on a Thursday afternoon. The trolleys will first form long chains and roll over any areas of opposition. They will then occupy strategic strongpoints, such as pubs, off licences etc. Mopping up operations will be completed by the crushing of any remaining opposition in the child safety seat that most trolleys have.

The trolleys will then convert the entire earth into a huge trolley park and then depart at about 4.16 p.m. the following Sunday.

So beware, the Day Of The Trolley is coming.

FIGURES OF SPEECH

To help you with your English Literature, and life in general, we at the DYGB have compiled a list of famous sayings by famous people that will aid you as you wend your way along life's weary, dreary path.

"Out damned spot, out I say.....you bad dog!" Lady Macbeth.

"Romeo? Romeo? Where for art thou Romeo?....I bet that blessed bus is late again!" Juliet.

"A close run thing." The Duke of Wellington on the 1966 World Cup Final.

"Hang out our banners on the castle walls..... I must get the bloke in about the spin dryer," Macbeth.

"You ain't seen nothin' yet!!!" Mad Ronnie on the Libyan affair.

"Once more unto the beach, dear friends.... and lets grab those deck chairs first for a change!!" Henry V.

"Life begins at 101." Rudolf Heiss

"I counted them all out and I counted them all back." Mr. Warrington trying to explain the loss of a school calculator.

"The hand of Maradona, the hand of God and three blind officials." Diego Maradona about 'that goal.'

"Kiss me Hardy.....ugh!!! Have you been eating garlic ?" Nelson.

"Soon the whole world will know my name." Colonel Gadaffi.

"We came, we saw, we did a little shopping." American tourists.

"England expects every man to do his duty." Mike Gatting to the England cricket team.

"Ummmmerrrruuuummmm..... owwwwwww..... Harri..... ummerrrruuuummmm."
Frank Bruno on his world title defeat.

FRIDGE JOKES

My fridge has got no nose. How does it smell? Awful.

A fridge walked into a pub with a duck under his arm. The barman asked "Why have you brought a pig with you?" The fridge replied "It's not a pig it's a duck." The barman said "I was talking to the duck."

How many muggers does it take to mug a fridge?
Three, one to mug him and two to hold his ghetto-blasters.

Two fridges walking down the road. One of them is knocked down by a hit and run driver.

1st fridge: "Call me an ambulance."

2nd fridge: "You're an ambulance."

Why did the Romans build straight roads?
So that fridges couldn't build corner shops.

Police have arrested a fridge found dressed in brown paper boots, brown paper jacket, brown paper trousers, and a brown paper shirt. He has been charged with rustling.

A turf lorry drove past two fridges one day. One fridge said to the other, "That's what I'm going to do when I'm rich - send my lawn to be cut!"

A fridge phones up the Wolves:-

Fridge: "What time is the match?"

Spokesman: "What time can you get here?"

Did you hear about the show-jumping fridge who broke his nose jumping against the clock?

SHORT CIRCUIT - Demo Tape

'As if by Magic'. This is good strong stuff; music with very few frills and extras. Nine original songs, soaring guitars, strong vocals and a hard, direct beat that drives the message home. The message is in the songs, which are very good lyrically and really mean something, an all too rare occurrence these days.

Topics dealt with range from apartheid and racism ('Cultural Segregation') to the shortcomings of governments ('System Stinks', 'Back of 84') to injustice in the British courts system ('Don't Close Your Eyes').

Groups like Short Circuit are often accused of churning out song after song that sound exactly the same. Some groups do this, Short Circuit do not - this demo proves that. From the 100 mph opening instrumental ('The Mad Song') to the slow-fast-slow-fast bursts of 'Real World' each song is different.

Unfortunately many people will not like this tape. The mass of people who judge music by its creator's looks, synthesizer and 'false music' lovers and the pathetic lot who do not like the topics covered in the songs - all will not listen, which is a shame, because it is a very good tape. Well done Short Circuit!

8 out of 10 - Anthony Price.

Being kids at heart, the staff have enjoyed reading the DYGB as much as everyone else. Just to prove this fact, here are their comments about the magazine:-

MR BIRD.....Burns with a lilac flame.
MRS BLUNT.....I found the suspense of the denouement unbearable.
MR BRADLEY.....Beats 'Motorcycle News' anyday.
MR BROOKES.....Used it as a fan on location in Trinidad.
MRS BROWN.....I didn't understand the jokes.
MR BOUCHER.....Inspired by a madman, written by lunatics with technical advice given by a rather attractive young guy.
MR R CLOKE.....Totally free of animal fat.
MR COLLINS.....About eleven times better than 'Streethawk'.
MISS DEARN.....Eleven out of ten.
MRS DISLEY.....Used it to swat eight flies on the cooker.
MR FREEMAN.....6502 out of 7000.
MRS A HARRIS.....I read it in the hairdressers.
MRS L HARRIS.....Better than Edith Piaf.
MRS HARRISON.....I've ordered a hundred copies for the library.
MRS HARTLEY.....Magazine? What magazine.
MR HEWITT.....An excellent production by extremely talented pupils.
MR HIPKISS.....Doesn't make much sense when played on the piano either.
MRS HOUGH.....Brilliant - as usual.
MR HOWARTH.....Makes a good tent.
MRS KENDRICK.....Great for making papier mache.
KERI.....Cheaper than toilet paper.
MRS LAWRENCE.....Not bad.
MR MANNING.....Sorry, I never talk to the Press.
MRS MASON.....Goes well with rhubarb tart.
MRS PADDOCK.....i F*umD iT vERy intEResTI nG? AND well typeeD$
MR PAY.....Has a density of 0.485 g/cc.
MRS PENN.....Blah blah Keri library blah Neil quiet blah.
MR PETTIT.....If only the Romans had had it.
MRS RICHARDS.....C'est tres bien, mes petites fleurs.
MISS ROBBINS.....Could try harder.
SIR HARRY SECOMBE.....Gives added assurance, especially when braking in the wet.
MR STOCKTON.....The working drawings weren't very clear.
MRS STOREY.....What a waste of a tree.
MR VERNON.....But I only ever read 'The Guardian'.
MR WARRINGTON.....The probability of someone liking this magazine is 0.852.
MRS WEST.....One of the great literary works of our age.
MR WESTON.....Fulfills one of the goals in my life.
MR WHALLEY.....No future career in it.
MRS WHALLEY.....Fortunately it doesn't come back when you throw it.
MISS WILSON.....Originated as an Um-Boca tree in one of the South American rain forests.

We've also received a letter from a mystery writer:-

Dear DYGB, I think your magazine is brilliant, the jokes are really funny, the stories are incredible and the writers are wonderfully good-looking. What are you all doing tonight?

Love Miss M.G.
